
Each point compares the mean of the same three known tasks within one cycle.

Repeated tasks and cycles are correlated; points are not independent task samples or confidence intervals.